MUSIC FESTIVAL OF DISTRICT H. S. PROVES WONDERFUL

Band, Choruses and Orchestras Do Work "Almost Unbelievable"

1,700 HEAR CONCERT AT LIB

"I assure you it is well worth your time," Principal L. O. Bright of Antioch said when inviting local people to attend the second annual music festival held at Libertyville Monday night, where about 75 Antioch students joined with 400 from other high schools of the conference district to produce one of the most inspiring programs ever heard in this locality.

How well the local school principal's prophecy was fulfilled is told in the Cook County Herald, says the Herald:

"The work these young people have done today is almost unbelievable," was said of the Music Festival of the Northwest High School conference by Raymond F. Dvorak, guest conductor from the University of Illinois at the close of the performance Monday night in the huge gymnasium of the Libertyville high school.

A vast assemblage of picked musicians from Antioch, Arlington Heights, Barrington, Bensenville, Ela, Libertyville, Leyden, Palatine, Warren and Wauconda filed in and took their places in the east third of the floor of the great building, and as they stood together, a chorus of about 275, a band of 150, and orchestra of like number, it was an imposing sight.

Sensational Band

As they were seated, Principal H. E. Underbrink of Libertyville high school welcomed the audience of about 1700 persons, introducing Mr. Dvorak, leader of the University of Illinois band, who immediately was at his place, the great band of 150 pieces responding instantly with the popular and thrilling strains of Sousa's march "El Capitan." The audience was electrified.

Composer Directs

The final number of the band, as a surprise, was personally directed by the composer, Mr. Mader, of the "Chicago Worlds' Fair Centennial 1933" march. This band had had but two (Continued on page eight)

Lake County

The population of Lake Villa township as shown by a preliminary count of the returns of the Fifteenth Census, taken as of April 1, 1930, is 1,364, as compared with 1,031 on January 1, 1920. The village of Lake Villa has population of 485 as compared to 407 ten years ago. There were 84 farms enumerated in the township.

Avon township also registered a growth, the 1930 population being 2,103, according to the census taker, as compared with 1,534 in 1920. The village of Hainesville in ten years dropped from 84 to 81; Grayslake increased from 730 in 1920 to 1,119 in 1930; Round Lake jumped from 251 to 336, according to the recent census just completed.

Ela Loses

Ela township lost 33 residents in the ten year period, the census reveals, that township dropping from 2,336 in 1920 to 1,803 in 1930, but the village of Lake Zurich in this township showed a slight gain, 365 as compared with 316 in 1920. Ela has 178 farms enumerated.

Library to Close for Four Weeks

On account of the absence of the librarian, the Antioch public library will be closed for four weeks beginning next week.

Those having books out are asked to bring them in on Friday if possible. If not they may keep them for the month—there will be no fines.

Planning for a 105-Story Tower

A 105-story building in Wall street, New York, is occupying the attention of Louis Adler (left), president of the Louis Adler Realty corporation, who is shown going over blueprints with the general manager, Julius Fishman. Adler, who has just purchased an entire block in the world-famous street of finance, is believed to be the only individual ever to make so large a purchase in this thoroughfare.

ANTIOCH LAUNDRY TO OPEN IN ABOUT FOUR WEEKS, SO IT IS SAID

E. A. Grutzmacher, Manager, Arrives to Supervise Preliminaries

TO BECOME ANTIOTH CITIZEN

With the arrival last week of E. A. Grutzmacher, manager of the new Chain O'Lakes Laundry and Dry Cleaning company, to take active supervision of the installation of the $40,000 worth of machinery into the new plant, the realization of this project is promised within a short time.

Mr. Grutzmacher is a laundryman of 20 years experience, having successfully started two large laundries in Chicago within that period, both of which he sold for many times the original investment. He comes to the new laundry, therefore, with a thorough knowledge of his task and with a background of successful experience. Not only so, but he is himself a large investor in the Antioch enterprise.

Expects to Make Antioch Home

Mr. Grutzmacher has recently moved to Park Ridge, after years of residence in Chicago, but he told a News reporter Thursday morning that he expected to sell his Park Ridge home soon and purchase a home in Antioch. As he said it in his own words, "I want to identify myself completely with Antioch. I do not think it would be fair to come here to make my living and reside elsewhere."

With the opening of the laundry for work tentatively set to occur within four weeks Mr. Grutzmacher's first task will be the supervision of the installation of machinery, three carloads of which arrived today. The manufacturers have promised to co-operate with Mr. Grutzmacher, George Orr, financial engineer, and Clarence D. Foth, promoter and attorney-in-fact, to enable the opening to occur shortly after June 1st. Mr. Grutzmacher will also begin at once the formation of an organization and the arranging of office facilities.

While the opening of an institution of this size demands attention to many details, Mr. Grutzmacher emphasized his belief that it would be accomplished within three or four weeks.

Shortly after the laundry is open-

FIREMEN PRACTICE; CHIEF IS PLEASED WITH FAST WORK

Leave Fire Station and Make Hose Connection in 90 Seconds

Ninety seconds do not mean much in the lives of most people, but when there is a fire this short space of time is very valuable if taken advantage of. It took Company No. 1 of the local fire department just one minute and thirty seconds to make a hose connection on a Main street hydrant here Monday evening. Chief James Stearns timed the operation from the standing start at the station until all was set to go with the water.

"Ninety seconds," announced Stearns, and the chief's smile of satisfaction meant a lot to the boys who always try their level best.

Practice Runs Monday

It has been the experience of most country fire departments that speed in getting to the scene of a fire is of utmost importance if efficient work is to be done. Records of the local department reveal the fact that most fires are out of the village where there are neither hydrants nor water, and unless practice runs are made the boys forget their tricks with the hose in making hydrant connections and hose connections.

Practice runs will take place on Monday evening through the summer months when the weather permits, so there is no cause for alarm when the different companies are seen out doing their stuff.

Waukegan Times, New Daily, Makes Bow to Public

The long-awaited Waukegan new daily newspaper made its initial appearance Monday afternoon. It's the Waukegan Daily Times, which broke forth into the Lake county journalistic field with a 32-page edition, crammed with late news, well patronized by advertisers, and full of sizzle from the first page to the last. The News is pleased to welcome the Times to the editorial desk.

The Times is the product of the Waukegan Publishing Co., Inc. Geo. Morris, M. I. Whitmire and George F. Stiles are the publishers. Wayne T. Stupay is managing editor and Lloyd T. McNeirney, city editor. The new publication is independent in politics.

School Kiddies Will Have Circus Parade

Pupils of Mrs. Lux's room, the first and second grades, will have a circus parade tomorrow (Friday) at two o'clock. The public has not been enlightened as to what this is all about—just the simple announcement, "circus parade," so everybody had better be on deck tomorrow at two o'clock.

ed visiting week will be publicly announced and everyone welcomed and shown how a modern laundry handles the work entrusted to it. In the meantime the people of Antioch are awaiting with eagerness the completion of this long looked for enterprise.

FACULTY OF ANTIOTH HIGH SCHOOL CHOSEN FOR 1930-1931 TERM

Rumors of Resignation of Mr. Bright is Untrue

MISS RICE TO LIBERTYVILLE

L. O. Bright is to remain as head of the Antioch Township high school during the next school year and there is to be no wholesale resignation of teachers, following his departure or consequent upon his resignation, he announced Wednesday morning to The News. This statement effectively answers rumors that have been afloat that he and several other teachers were planning to quit the school at the end of the present term.

In elaboration of his denial of this rumor Mr. Bright gave out the following list of present teachers who have contracted to continue in the faculty next year: Miss Alice Smith, Mrs. Ruby Richey, Mrs. Gladys Dardene, Miss Lillian Schroeder, C. L. Kutil, F. H. Hackett, and L. O. Bright. A tentative agreement has also been reached with G. G. Reed.

There will be a few changes in next year's faculty, however. Miss Hedwig Rice goes to the Libertyville schools as teacher of vocal music. This is a distinct advancement for Miss Rice, as her position there carries with it a salary of $2,400 per year, which Mr. Bright says is the largest salary he knows of received by a woman teacher in this section of the state.

To succeed Miss Rice the services of E. V. Jeffers of Illinois Wesleyan have been announced. He will have charge of vocal and instrumental music next year.

Miss Cornelia Roberts, now teaching in Lake Zurich, has been employed to teach history and English. She will also act as girls' advisor.

PRINCIPAL BRIGHT TO ADDRESS GRAMMER SCHOOL GRADUATES

Legion Men Will Present Awards at Promotional Exercises

Principal L. O. Bright of the Antioch Township high school, will address the eighth grade graduates at the promotional exercises to be held Monday evening at eight o'clock at the high school auditorium. Mr. Bright will have for his subject, "The Transition from the Grades to the High School."

Legion Men to Make Awards
Members of the local post of the American Legion, who have sponsored a contest for school students during the year, will be present to make the citizenship awards.

A class of 26 finishes the eighth grade this year:

Cortland F. Abele, Vernon R. Abele, Donald W. Andersen, Clayton W. Bartlett, Delores Gladys Blackman, Elizabeth Helen Corrin, Marjorie Ann Crowley, Thelma Louise Cunningham, Arthur William Griffin, Carl Herbert Hattendorf, Maretta L. Hawkins, Helen M. Hostetter, Berneice Jensen, Lillian Laursen, Marion Lykke, Adele Caroline Miller, Lester J. Osmond, Bertha Overton, Jack Panowski, Gloria Pierce, Walter John Sheen, Wray Junior Sheeh, Walter Simonsen, Marvin E. Van Patten, Jean Van Patten, George William Wetzel.

CARRIER PIGEONS REST NEAR ANTIOTH

Two carrier pigeons were reported to have reached here early this week. One was captured at the A. G. Hahn place north of Antioch. This pigeon carried an aluminum leg band upon which were the letters and numerals: "A. U.—28 ACE 1147." Under a rubber band was the number 831.

A second pigeon sought food and shelter at the Oetting farm near Trevor a few days ago. It was not learned what inscription was carried by the second bird.

MINIATURE GOLF COURSE IS A PUTTER'S DELIGHT

Another amusement enterprise, unique so far as this immediate vicinity is concerned, will be opened to the lovers of the "gran' auld gym" of Scotland Saturday when the Little Tom golf course at Channel lake is opened for play.

On a block of ground just west of the Smith hotel the Smith family, two brothers and three nephews, have built a miniature course that will test the skill of any golfer who is proud of his putter strokes.

Patterned after the miniature courses that have sprung into great popularity among the Florida winter resorts, the Little Tom course offers almost every test of a golfer's skill with his putting irons that can be made. Among the 18 holes are dogleg holes, holes with water hazards, holes requiring carom shots off the bunkers, holes with sand traps, holes where one-third the shot is through a hollow log. Several holes require shots of such accuracy as to pass into four inch tiles. Indeed, if the golfer devotee, no matter how much he loves his game, doesn't find himself cussing Old Man Par, which is 45 for the course, before he gets through, he will be a man of heavenly patience. And it will be a world of fun for the non-golfer to show just how easy it is to be a golfer if one wants to be.

Shrubbery and flowers surround the course, while flower beds dot the open spaces, and a 100-watt lamp lights each hole for night playing. The sod, though transplanted this spring, is growing nicely. Altogether, Smith's Little Tom golf course, as illustrated elsewhere among the advertisements, is a pleasant spot.

GLIDER CLUB IS ORGANIZED HERE

Motorless Airplane Is Or- dered—Demonstration Memorial Day

Organization of a glider club for Antioch men and young men was effected Tuesday night at a meeting of enthusiasts for the project. The meeting which was held at Fawcett's Tailor shop, was well attended, and Ted Stanton, representative of the Midwest Airways, Milwaukee, had little trouble signing up the requisite number of members and the cash to warrant shipping the glider to Antioch. Seven men signed to become charter members of Antioch's first flying club. As an encouragement to the younger men, several business men are joining in the venture with the younger men.

Demonstration Friday
The big glider, a Detroit Gull, for which the purchase order was signed, will arrive here some time during the week and next Friday, Memorial day, experts from Milwaukee will give a demonstration of flying in a motorless airplane. After the first flights the glider will be placed in Wetzel's Chevrolet Sales room, to await the signing of additional members for the club and the raising of the balance of the cash required to pay for the machine and to defray expenses of some member selected by the club to receive instructions in gliding at the Midwest airport in Milwaukee.

Have you joined the Glider club?

PAVILIONS PLAN SEASON OPENINGS

The Channel Lake Pavilion will open for four nights and two matinees. Manager Homer Winch announced this week. The opening dance will be on Thursday night when Doug Peppard and his Northwestern Troubadours will entertain. There will also be dancing on the three following nights with matinees on Decoration day and Sunday. The summer season, with dancing every night except Monday, will start June 28.

Manager C. E. Rademacher announces the season opening of Twin Lakes ballroom next Friday and Saturday, May 30 and 31. Mel Stitt and his orchestra will play at the opening. Earl Golz and his Gold Coast orchestra will be featured at the Antioch Palace Saturday night, May 24. The Palace has been open for Saturday dances for many weeks.

Mrs. Medora Webb spent Tuesday in Chicago on business.

VILLAGE BOARD VOTES 1-HOUR PARKING LIMIT ON MAIN AND LAKE STS.

Vote Also to Employ Full- Time Police Officer on Yearly Basis

SALARY TO BE $1680 YEARLY

Limitation of parking time in the business district and employment of a full-time police officer for the coming year was voted by the village board in its special session Tuesday evening.

Ordinances will be drawn at once by the village attorney and submitted to the board for approval. If approved, and there is no reason to believe the board will change its mind in the matter unless unusually strong representations of disapproval are registered, the ordinances will then go into effect as soon as they can be published.

One Hour Only on Main and Lake
The denial of unlimited parking time affects Main street from Park to Orchard avenues and Lake street from Victoria avenue to Main street. The limit for parking, if the vote is translated into an ordinance, will be one hour. Only one block is affected on Lake street, from the First National bank to the Tronson Studio corner. On Main street the stretch affected extends from just south of the News office to Wentworth's Cupboard.

The idea underlying the action of the council is that with the influx of cottagers and vacationists within a few weeks, parking space within the retail district will be at a premium, even under the most favorable circumstances, and those who come early or have business places on the principal streets should not be allowed to "hog" the parking space to the inconvenience of others.

Favor Uniformed Policeman

The employment of a full-time officer for the summer period took form in a motion that John Brogan be employed at a salary of $140 per month. After the summer season passes Mr. Brogan will devote whatever time is necessary to assisting Marshal Simon Simonsen in his work. Mr. Simonsen will have charge of all street, alley, sewer and water work, but will also be available for police duty on special occasions.

The board recognized the need for a uniformed full-time police officer during the summer season, especially with reference to traffic problems, including the enforcement of the proposed one-hour parking law on Main and

OUR SEVEN LEAGUE BOOTS

Scientists of today say that the last half of the Nineteenth century and the first half of the Twentieth century will go down in history as the modern "Golden Age." Not the "Golden Age" perhaps of literature, art and drama, but the TRULY golden age of scientific progress.

The gap between the chiseled word and the modern printing press was short. The gap between the first internal combustion engine, fore-runner of our present servant, still shorter. And the span of years between the first experiments of Tesla, Watt, Ohm and those other first successful pioneer delvers into the mysteries of electrical energy and our own modern Edison, Bell and Marconi seems but a day.

And it is in the lifetime of active men of today that the first feeble telegraph instrument ticked forth its immortal message between two rooms; that the first faintly glowing bamboo fragment gave way to the flashing incandescent lights and beacons of today. Hill and Harriman were building railroads; Wilbur and Orville Wright experimenting at Kitty Hawk; Olds and Duryea and later Ford tinkering with "horseless carriages," when the present school child's parents were in school.

There was in those days no parcel post. And there was no rural free delivery. Street cars limped slowly, and the crowds abroad were not heading for a movie palace.

The mail order house was the delight of the farmer to whom trips to town by horse and wagon were long and laborious. Neighbors saw each other in scattered communities once in weeks, relatives living a few score miles apart visited once in years. A trip to a distant city was an adventure and marked a man as a traveler. And news good or bad came slowly by word of mouth or oft delayed letter.

What a difference between that picture and the one today of paved highways lumbering trucks, great buses, skittering cars, the telephone, the radio, with television around the corner we are told, surely within a score or so of months.

The use to which we put these servants determines our satisfaction in life—and our progress as well. The airplane offers swift transportation; the train learns of new competition from the bus in long as well as short distance journeys; "never before have the long distance toll lines been given the use the last year has known," say the telephone people; and the radio is the most recent actor to enter upon the stage of rapidly moving scientific drama.

It has given us a faster-moving life—a fuller life; more time for leisure, more knowledge of the world and its current affairs; a greater variety of activities and the greater time to give to them. It means progress for Antioch if we "keep in step with the world" with our Seven League Boots.

THE BACKLOG OF CREDIT

Potatoes are not nearly as fashionable at a party as avocados.

Beans are not as stylish on the hotel menu as frog legs.

Salt pork doesn't have the same rank at the banquet table as does caviar.

An insurance policy against fires and accidents lying in a safe, is not as thrilling to the owner as a steamship ticket to Europe.

But the work and progress of the world is carried forward by the millions of people who live largely on such foods as potatoes, beans and salt pork.

The security, credit and pleasure of the world is guaranteed by the insurance policy that stands back of every commercial enterprise. Without the protection of insurance, the reasonably-priced railroad and steamship ticket would be impossible and security for invested capital which employs the millions of workers who consume our potatoes, beans and salt pork, would be lacking.

The story of insurance is the story of the growth of modern civilization.

Old Eagle Eye Says—

Know your home town first. There are 23 insurance agents in Antioch, and in the region nearby there are 173 subdivisions. Thus it would appear that there are two commodities, home owning and insurance on the same, that ought to be reasonably priced. About everybody around here can "get it wholesale."

* * *

Antioch has a leaning water tower, some crooked streets, a few crooked people, some bent trees and irregular sidewalks grades, yet it is not known whether or not the fellow who invented the expression "this cock-eyed world" ever cast his eyes upon this fair village.

* * *

At that Antioch is just about the best bet in the entire state for a small town.

* * *

Old Eagle Eye has long heard of "the black sheep of the family," but Chas. Lux's family of sheep is going so strong on black ones this spring that it knocks the old adage cockeyed. For how can we say of one of his three spring lambs, "That one is the black sheep of the family," when all three are as black as crows? Isn't that a record of some kind?

* * *

Paul Pettingel, certified public accountant employed to audit the financial affairs of the village of Antioch, says this town is in pretty good condition. That's good news, coming right at the time when many people thought the sheriff was about to hang the padlock on the "hub of the lake region." No wheel can turn with a padlock on the hub.

* * *

Every game, business or otherwise, has its own code of ethics peculiar to it. No one ever heard of a bank robber, stickup man or a sneak thief telling the world how he spends the money he gets from the practice of his racket. But when you put your hard earned jack into honest business channels you want to know, and have a right to know, just what you are getting in exchange for your money, whether the cash outlay be for a bag of potatoes, a pair of shoes, or just plain old American taxes to carry on the municipal, state and federal government. There is a statute in Illinois requiring the publication of statements from those who handle public funds, a law that has been grossly disregarded in Antioch:

* * *

Here's the law:
(Sec. 1.)
Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly: Each public officer, other than a state officer, who, by virtue of his office received for disbursement and disburses public funds in the discharge of governmental or municipal debts and liabilities, shall, at the expiration of each fiscal year, prepare a statement:

(1) Of all money received and from what sources received, giving items, particulars and details;

(2) Of all money paid out, giving the name of each individual to whom paid, on what account paid, and the amount.

Such statement shall be subscribed and sworn to by the public officer making such statement, and, within thirty days after the expiration of such fiscal year shall be filed in the office of the county clerk of the county in which such public officer resides. Chap. 102, Sec. 5.

To Be Published

Such public officer shall also, within thirty days after the expiration of such fiscal year, cause a true, complete and correct copy of such statement to be published one time in a newspaper published in the town, district or municipality in which such public officer holds his office, or if no newspaper is printed and published in such town, district or municipality, then in the nearest newspaper printed in the English language published in the county in which such public officer resides. Chap. 102, Sec. 6.

* * *

In direct defiance of this Illinois statute, Antioch officials neglected to publish a financial statement last year: Antioch township has presumably complied with it by publishing a very brief summarized statement that means nothing, neglecting to publish the "name of each individual" on what account paid, and the amount;" also the "items, particulars, and details" were completely ignored. There is no law in Illinois authorizing a summarized statement of the supervisor, and the practice as "followed in Waukegan" is no good at all, and, furthermore, here's the penalty for neglect of duty: III. Revised statutes, Chap. 102, sec. 10: "Any public officer, subject to the provisions of this act, failing, neglecting or refusing to discharge any duty imposed upon him by this Act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum * * * not more than five hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not longer than one year, or be punished by both such fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court." There it is—take it or leave it. Any taxpayer or citizen in the municipality would be acting wholly within his rights by causing charges to be brought against any officer neglecting to comply with the Illinois law by neglecting to have published a complete, itemized statement. What are the tax-payers going to do about it, continue to pay more taxes than ever before, and pay blindly, or will they demand the "break" they are entitled to by insisting upon seeing the published statements of receipts and expenditures?

* * *

That's all for this week.

Mrs. Charles Tiffany and small daughter, Joan, of Waukegan, spent Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Keulman. Mrs. Keulman continues to slowly improve in health.

Wm. Keulman spent last Friday in Chicago on business and is there again today also.

longs her call for an hour or so, when twenty minutes would have been more than adequate, and spends the time in telling how amazingly well she is, how many herculean physical tasks she has recently performed, and how, if nothing unforeseen happens, she seems likely to live a hundred. Somehow she does not sense the fact that this flaunting of her exuberant health in the face of a woman who at best has only a few weeks of life before her, has not helped the invalid the easier to bear her own pains and disappointments.

Mrs. Higgins knows what to do when she comes into a sickroom.

"What a lovely room you have," she says to Mrs. Ford, as she enters the sick chamber. "If you must be sick—and really you look better than you did when I was here before—you certainly have a beautiful place to stay in. Everybody's asking about you. Sometimes I think I'd be willing to be sick myself just to find out how many friends I had, and especially if I had as many as you have."

She stays hardly ten minutes but she leaves the sick woman cheered, hopeful, happy in the thought that she may, after all, get well, and if she doesn't she is not going to be forgotten, for she will be leaving behind those who love her.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 18.

The Golden Text was, "Henceforth know we no man after the flesh"
(II Cor. 5:16).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened:
not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life" (II Cor. 5:1,4).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:
"Science reveals the glorious possibilities of immortal man, forever unlimited by the mortal senses" (p.
288).

DISTRICT REBEKAH MEETING HAS LARGE ATTENDANCE

With an attendance that approached close to the 200-mark, the nineteenth annual meeting of District Three, Rebekah lodges, met in Antioch last Friday afternoon and evening, enjoyed a most pleasant session, elected new officers for the ensuing year, and passed into history as an unusually successful district meeting.

The memorial service conducted by Autumn Leaf lodge of Barrington was especially praised for its solemnity and beauty. And the arrangements made by the Antioch lodge, including the roast beef dinner served by Clark's Cafe, came in for an especial share of praise from the visitors.

Among the many acts of courtesy extended by the Lakeside Rebekah lodge was the presentation of bouquets of flowers to all the state and district officers. Mrs. Mary D. Rundt, Antioch, who retired as district president, was the recipient of a beautiful purse from her associate district officers of the past year.

The flowers to district and state officers were presented by a special guard of honor, composed of Mmes. Emma Larson, Bertha Olson, Pearl Hanlan, and Winifred Davidson.

New District Officers Chosen
The new district officers elected are: Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, Waukegan, president; Mrs. Edna Watkins, Highland Park, vice-president; Mrs. Grace Howells, Crystal Lake, warden; Miss Emily Sanders, Waukegan, secretary; and Mrs. Margaret Whiting, Libertyville, treasurer. They were installed by Mrs. Grace Bairstow, Waukegan, vice-president of Illinois state assembly, assisted by Mrs. Effie Syljanders, Chicago, as marshal.

CHANNEL LAKE COUNTRY CLUB NEWS
—What Members of Popular Organization Are Doing—

The Channel Lake club luncheon of last week, held at the Woman's University club, marked another happy occasion of that organization. The Woman's University club certainly has the distinction of serving their guests in a delightful manner, and on this occasion, following the afternoon card game, tea and wafers were also served.

The prize winners of the day were Mrs. Henry Paulson, first; Mrs. Wm. S. Mills, second, Mrs. Sommers (guest) third, and Mrs. Harry Arms, fourth.

Among those present were: Mmes. Gnaedinger, Paulson, Bayrd, Arms, Smyth, Sandel, Britton, Mills, Tankersley, Gorauch, Gifford, and Laffin. There were also seven guests.

It is most disappointing to the many members who count on a Sunday drive from the city and a pleasant day at the club, to have a cold rainy day such as last Sunday. However, many of those who have their cottages open and in running order, braved the elements and were out for over the weekend. Among this number were Mr. and Mrs. Mills, who, by the way, have their beautiful home on Lake Marie open the year around, and spend most of their week-ends in it. Other weekend sojourners were the Gnaedingers, Giffords, Tankersleys, Schmidts, Sandells, Arms, and Volk families. No doubt many others might be mentioned, but we will soon all be "among those present."

Oakland 4-H Group

The Oakland 4-H Sewing club of the Oakland school district has been organized with Mrs. Pierstorff as leader. The officers are: Grace Minto, president; Margaret Hughes, vice-president; Alice Gelden, secretary and treasurer; Margaret Pierstorff, reporter.

Two meetings have been held and the work is progressing nicely. The next meeting will be held June 5.

Wilmot Takes Lead In Inter-County League

PIRATES DEFEAT SOMERS, 4 TO 3 IN SUNDAY GAME

Fortunes of baseball smiled on the Wilmot Pirates Sunday when that team won over Somers of Kenosha, 4 to 3, in a game that had all the earmarks of big league baseball, the victory putting the Pirates in the lead in the Inter-county league, while Antioch was suffering a crushing defeat at the hands of Silver Lake, thus becoming cellar champs for the week at least. Silver Lake's victory over the locals was decisive, 14 to 3.

Chill winds added nothing in the way of enjoyment of fans nor to the skill of the players, and many errors were chalked up against them. Ray Miller, Antioch pitcher, had ten strikeouts to his credit, but was given ragged support. Timely hits and a few costly errors accounted for the large score.

Norman Richter pitched winning ball for Silver Lake, striking out eight batters and allowing seven runs.

Wilmot Plays Big League Ball

Wilmot played big league ball at Kenosha Sunday afternoon—that's the brand it took to defeat Somers. Frank went the route on the mound for the Pirates while Dilly worked the entire nine rounds for Somers.

Somers had men on the bases often enough but good support pulled Frank over some shaky spots. The work of M. Schnurr at second was nothing short of remarkable. McDougal and Ehrt also made wonderful catches when the agate looked labeled for extra bases.

Schnurr had three hits in four attempts and Sullivan came along for two out of three, including a double.

Walworth Here Sunday

No games are on tap in the Inter-County league for next Sunday, all four teams in the southern section having open dates. Antioch will play Walworth, Wis., an independent team of considerable renown, the game to be played on the local diamond starting at 2:15 standard time.

Wilmot will cross bats with the Dunneback team of Kenosha.

Miss Hilma Rosing underwent an operation for removal of her tonsils Monday at the Lake County hospital. Today she is back at her work at the First National bank.

Junior-Senior Prom Occurs Friday Night

The Junior-Senior banquet and prom inaugurates the activities of the high school commencement to-morrow evening. It will be presented this year in the form of a visit to Tokyo, Japan. Japanese names for the menu of the banquet and Japanese decorations for the auditorium, transformed for this evening into "Tokyo Gardens," give a characteristic touch of Cherry Blossom Land.

The banquet will be served at 7:00 in the school dining room. It will be prepared by Junior girls, assisted by some of their mothers, and will be served by the girls of the Sophomore class.

Olive Hansen will serve as toastmistress following the banquet, and Lilah Hawkins, Mr. Gerald Reed, Miss Alice Smith, and Howard Masten will respond to toasts, the titles of which also carry out the Japanese theme of the evening.

The prom will begin about 8:30 and will be held in the school auditorium. Twisted ropes of green and white crepe separate a colonade around the walls of the room into a lounging space, where easy chairs and rugs will invite the resting dancers. Above the lattice of green and white the walls are entirely covered by foliage and long festoons and streamers of artificial cherry blossoms form a canopy from the chandeliers to the top of the greenery.

The arrangements for the prom and banquet are being supervised by Mrs. Gladys Dardenne and Mrs. Ruby Richey of the faculty.

Musci will be furnished by an orchestra from Burlington, Wis.

Gavin School Pupils Present Clever Play

"Sally Ann Finds Herself" was the title of a clever two-act play presented by the grammar grade pupils of Gavin school Saturday night. It was all centered about activities of Foxcourt grade school, when during preparations for a basketball game the arrival of unexpected guests and lost ring are incidents that create near tragedy and much comedy. However, the ring is found, in the second act, and the little romance ends happily for all concerned.

Members of the cast included:

Della Newton, Beatrice Jorgensen, Lorraine Perkins, Clifford Hansen, Bob Graham, Helen Stratton, Harriet Stanton, William Klein, Tom Graham, and Beatrice Ullmann.

Graduation Wednesday. Invitations have been sent out by the eighth grade class for the graduation exercises to be held at the school Wednesday night, May 28, at 8:00 o'clock, daylight saving time.

This is a challenge bout and both are reported to be out for blood.

The remaining six bouts bring together E. Kratoevic, Racine, Wis., J. Connally, Chicago, in a return match; Eugene Berton, Kenosha, Wis., and L. Thompson, Barry's gym, at 118 pounds; A. Last Week's Results

Syd Kaplan, Chicago, also a Golden Gloves champion, won a three-round bout from George Goodman, Chicago. Both these bouts were good and pleased the crowd.

Eugene Berton, Kenosha, won a technical knockout from B. Adams in the second round. Jimmy Fay, McHenry, won over R. Crody, Chicago. Audean Berton, Kenosha, lost a decision to O. Maleno, Chicago. George Taylor, Waukegan, took a close decision over Johnny Connally, Chicago. Tony Mascarello, Chicago, won from Gerald Varmyeller, Geneva, D. Krody trounced J. Lunetto, Chicago.

LEGION NOTES

Final details for the observance of Memorial day in Antioch were arranged Wednesday evening at a meeting of members of the Antioch Post, American Legion, and other organizations. The program will be published in the next issue of the News.

One of the best attended meetings of the year was held by the county council at Deerfield Friday evening.

the home of Commander Kapskull of the eighth district. The district comprises 15 well organized Legion posts in Lake county. A number of officers from other districts were present.

A plea was put before the members to furnish bugles for the boys at Hospital No. 105, Five Points, North Chicago. When a collection for this purpose was taken up $90 was contributed.

Prizes for posts and individual members were issued by the district membership committee. Commander Horan received a five-dollar goldpiece for having Antioch post rated in the second division in membership.

Members of Antioch Post No. 748, American Legion, are invited to attend the memorial services at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening. John L. Horan, post commoner, asks that the members of the post take notice of this invitation and attend, if possible.

BANKERS TO HOLD GREAT CONVENTION

Cleveland, Ohio, has been designated for the 1930 annual convention of the American Bankers Association. This organization, which numbers about 20,000 banks with $65,000,000,000 in assets, is annually the nation's most important financial event. The attendance ranges between five and ten thousand.

Cleveland is especially significant in the history of the Association's educational traditions since it was in this city, when the organization last met there in the year 1899, that the original resolution was presented looking to the formation of an educational section. This subsequently resulted in the American Institute of Banking in which are now enrolled 35,000 bank men and women engaged in the study of the technical and scientific phases of the business.

day afternoon of this week. The Vanishing parties have been very successful in every way for the Aid Society.

Sunday school and church services will be held on daylight saving time during the summer. Many were late last Sunday, but we hope for better results next Sunday.

Mrs. B. S. Hadad has been confined to her bed by illness during the past week.

Mrs. Ruth Russell and small daughter, who live in Maine, came last week Wednesday for a month's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Swanson.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Skofstad and family of Waukegan spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Douglas.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Avery and Mrs. Lola Avery attended the funeral of W. B. Smith in Waukegan Monday afternoon. Mrs. Smith is a sister of Mrs. Lola Avery.

Final exams for Lake Villa pupils were given at Gavin school Monday with others, and school closes this week. We understand that Miss Schlabach and Miss Falch will remain, but Mr. Mohar has accepted a position in his home town as journalist and Miss Sebora will teach at Mundelein.

Music Festival Wins High Praise from the Visiting Band Leader

(Continued from first page) rehearsals together, and had never seen Mr. Meder before; but this stirring and complicated piece of music was played with a vim and snap and expression that was truly marvelous. Both Mr. Meder and the band received ovations.

Next came the girls' "glee club" of 150 voices in four songs. To say that they sang surprisingly well is putting it mildly. They sang without notes, and part of the time without accompaniment. Their enunciation was so excellent that with the 150 voices the words were easily followed.

Next came a chorus of about 120 young men and older boys.

Great Male Chorus

We did not know that boys close to the time when their voices change, could be made to sing like that. They too, gave four difficult chorus numbers without notes.

Here is where the boys hardly had a fair deal; after a short intermission they had to go right on singing with the mixed chorus for four more numbers, including the great "Hallelujah," by Handel, that no tenors or sopranos except hardened and mature singers, not too tired, can get away with.

Grand Orchestra

Next came the immense orchestra, in the familiar strains of Schubert's "Marche Militaire," then in the "Menuetto" from 3rd Symphony by Haydn, then "Parting March" from Leonore Symphony by Raff, and the Spanish Dance" by Moskowski, which was brilliantly played, making a fitting finale.

Glowing Tribute Paid

Mr. Dvorak, the guest conductor, then turned to the audience and paid the tribute to the work of the boys and girls, and their faithful, efficient teachers, as quoted at the beginning of this article.

The marvel of their performance is heightened, he said, by the fact that only two rehearsals were had together. It was therefore an eloquent testimony to the thorough work done by the teachers in the high schools and the system by which they prepared for this festival.

"I am only the show case" said the guest conductor, giving the credit to the teachers, who were called out to make their bows to the audience: Miss Hedvig Rice and Mr. Lee Peterson, Antioch; Miss Grace Fetherston and Mr. W. N. Sears, Arlington Heights; Miss Dorothy Young and Mr. Daniel Mason, Barrington; Miss Mildred Rilling and Mr. Lynn Huffman, Bensenville; Miss Cornelia Roberts, Miss Loretta Milkwick, and Mr. Samuel Dooley, Ela; Miss Ina Mae Sanders and Mr. Paul Schenk, Libertyville; Miss Florence Underwood and Mr. L. Roy A. Stark, Palatine; Paul J. Schenk, Warren, and Miss Marion Louvren of Wauconda. The committee in charge of the festival was Mr. L. O. Bright, chairman; Mr. J. Paul Schenk, principal; Mr. H. E. Underbrink, as local manager.

concert master of the orchestra. He also did fine work in the boys' glee club and chorus.

About 500 musicians from the ten schools participated in the festival. This will be one of the high lights in their high school career.

Mr. Dvorak is certainly an inspirational conductor for high school boys and girls.

Mr. Schwenk of Libertyville is to be highly complimented for his detailed work as production manager.

To Antioch goes the credit of bringing the Festival into being. Mr. Bright conceived the idea and has been chairman of the committee in charge of both Festivals.

From the number of parents attending the Festival, one would be convinced that music is indeed important in their estimation.

Every one of the 2,000 persons in the auditorium went away feeling that he was a winner. There were no losers.

Of the cellos in the orchestra, Antioch furnished 4. Antioch also furnished 3 of the 4 string bases.

The Antiphonal choir lead by Miss Rice was a part of the most effective number on the entire program. Adoramus Te with this echo effect stands out supreme. The President of the Carl Fischer Publishing Co. said, "I have heard this number given dozens of times by professionals, but this is the most effective rendition I have ever heard."

Our Seven League Boots

The daily magic in the conquest of space and time has given us new ears, new feet—shortcuts over distance and time. Our present-day systems of transportation and communications have out-stepped the legendary "Seven League Boots."

Our standard of living is largely based on these modern conveniences of transportation and communication. The airplane, railroad, interurban, street car, bus, automobile and truck; the radio, telegraph, telephone, postal service and printing press are among the modern marvels which have speeded up our life, cut down space and distance, and brought the whole world to our door.

The most successful and prosperous people are those who insist on having these modern conveniences available for their use—and who make the fullest use of them for effective living.

Have you ever stopped to think:

That there is now an average of one automobile to every home in the United States.

That at least every other home has a telephone.

That statistics say that radios are in almost as common usage as the telephone.

Every form of convenience in modern communication and transportation is within our reach—is ready, and waiting for us to make efficient use of.

And by putting these modern marvels to the proper use of serving us and each other, we are forging ahead as a community and as a living center.

One of the greatest differences between people and communities is the use they make of these modern conveniences of transportation and communication.

Let's put our modern "Seven League Boots" to the best possible use in our competition with other towns and cities for superiority for

Youth Found in Lead in the Open Country

A study of where folks live and what they do in rural counties is given in new bulletin on the rural population of Tompkins and Schuyler counties, New York, by Prof. Bruce L. Melvin of Cornell university.

Youth is found in the open country, he says, and age in the villages; this age difference and the natural preferences of different ages bring a problem that must be met in the community organization and in education, Professor Melvin points out.

Industrial influences on districts surrounding cities change the classification more than is generally apparent. Ithaca township, surrounding Ithaca city, has nearly 60 per cent of its residents in the non-farming group. That township has about 54 people for each square mile; Cayuga township, in Schuyler county, the other extreme, has not quite 13 people for each square mile.

Families are largest in the industrial village and smallest in the incorporated rural villages. The industrial villages have most men in the productive ages of from 15 to 49 years.

The Alaskan Flag

Alaska has recently adopted an official flag. It has a blue field, bordered on three sides with a narrow band of gold. In the upper right-hand corner appears Polaris and below it the constellation Ursa Major, with its two "pointers" indicating the North star. The field of blue is held to symbolize the evening sky, the sea, mountain lakes and the wild flowers of Alaska; and the gold border, the wealth in Alaskan hills and streams. Polaris is the ever-constant guide of the explorer, woodsmen, prospector and surveyor. And Alaskans hope that the northernmost star may some day take its place as the forty-ninth in our national emblem.

Earthquake's Vagaries

An earthquake irrigated a cantaloupe field at Brawley, Calif., recently when a tremor caused small geysers to spout five inches high over the 100-acre field owned by the S. A. Gerrard company. The water irrigated the entire field and then flooded adjacent areas before subsiding. Small sand piles were left in the wake of unusual inundation, and a beet field nearby was completely covered by new sand.

STORY FROM THE START

Capt. Leon Fellowes' American merchant ship is sunk by a British frigate of Portugal in the War of 1812. The crew surrenders, but Fellowes reaches shore exhausted. His life is saved by an English-speaking girl, who conceals her identity. She is about to set out for Lisbon. Fellowes goes to Lisbon where he meets an acquaintance, Capt. Chater of the American ship True Bounty, who offers him a berth as a mate, but knowing Chater is disloyal in trading with the enemy, he refuses. He meets the girl who saved his life, Cara Inglepin, daughter of the owner of True Bounty. She is bound for home and induces Fellowes to sail as mate. He is in love with Cara, the vessel is attacked by the British frigate, Badger, Captain Collishaw. Despite his claims to American citizenship, Fellowes is taken aboard the Badger a "pressed" man. Maddened at what he believes is Cara's and Chater's treachery, he strikes Collishaw, who orders him a hundred lashes with the "cat." Fellowes' hatred of the three becomes obsession. On New York Fellowes escapes from the Badger. He scents a plot in a meeting to be held at Chater's home and gathers a company of militia to circumvent the plotters.

Feet shuffled in the dust, and Fellowes found himself, with Cuffee and Tom and Nimrod Sophie, leading the Fenables west on the South Country road. From the rear of the little column echoed the monotonous incantation of Sergeant Peir: "Hayfoot, strawfoot! Hayfoot, strawfoot! Hayfoot—"

The ancient's reiterated refrain died away in the chatter of the tree-tongs. There was only the "shuffle-shuffle, slap-slap" of feet in the dust, the rustling of equipment, the tense breathing of men toiling under excitement held in leash. It must be very late, Fellowes reflected, well along toward dawn; but the mist, low-lying over the swampy lands bordering the bay, thickened the darkness. Collishaw should be on the point of departure—the Englishman was no fool; in any case, would wish to keep his landing secret.

They tramped around a curve in the road, and Cuffee, at Fellowes' elbow, stiffened with a jerk.

"Whoo dat?" he whispered.

Simultaneously, came a bawl from the shadows in front:

"Ahoy, there! Lay to!"

And a bosun's whistle trilled, sharp and clear.

"Back yer ears, Clinch," roared Tom Grogan.

Pistols exploded among the trees; the whistle trilled again, sharper, more piercing.

"Our cutlasses," bellowed Clinch. "Stand by to receive boarders."

Behind them Fellowes heard Peir, quaveringly authoritative:

Form column—four—left into line—for'ard! Shift—firelocks! Present—firelocks! Aim—fire!"

The crashing detonation of thirty stand of arms dismayed the sailors, notwithstanding the militiamen's bullets flew in every direction save the enemy's. Fellowes detected their flight by the crackling of tree branches and Clinch's fervid oaths, and summoned the Fenables to pursue.

"After them, boys! Give 'em the cold steel!"

Tom was off already, Mrs. Rhodes' as brandished at the length of his upskirt arm, howling challenges to Clinch. Cuffee leaped into the woods, screaming a weird slogan learned in the jungles of Coromandel. Sophie continued to emit twittering calls that ran the gamut from falsetto to bass, trotting next to Fellowes. The Fenables followed stoutly.

The pursuit receded from the road, traversing a belt of trees which hid the antagonists from each other, bewildering both sides, and presently spilling out of the grove on to a range of cultivated fields. The light was growing, Fellowes perceived. In the distance, Chater's house was a white blip against a windbreak of tufted elms. Clinch launched a vigorous cutlass charge as soon as the increased visibility revealed the scanty numbers and character of the attackers.

"Come on, Badgers," the bosun encouraged his men. "Carry it to 'em, lads! Slice the lights out o' 'em! They're only milishy!"

The sailors responded gallantly, coming forward in a compact group, sure-footed and agile; and the militiamen, caught off-balance, out of breath, most of them with their guns empty, were disposed to run, despite Sergeant Peir's angry appeals. Sophie, vocal at last, stood stockstill, wheeling his suber and crying shrilly: "Follow your captain, men! Follow your captain!" It was Fellowes, with Tom and Cuffee, supported by Peir, who checked the impact of the sailors, and gave the Fenables an opportunity to rally. He flung his empty pistol into the charging group, snatched a clubbed rifle from one of the faltering militiamen, and attacked Clinch, himself—who recognized the Long Islander with a yell of incredulity.

"Sink me, lad! 'Owd ye get 'ere?" "Surrender, Bob! You're cornered."

"Not me! Bob Clinch don't strike 'is colors—"

But in the midst of his defiance the knot of sailors disintegrated, as Cuffee smashed the head of one and Tom hewed a second from shoulder to waist. The Fenables, who had been on the verge of flight, were intoxicated with ferocity by their first sight of blood, and eagerly resumed the pursuit.

"Surrender, Bob," Fellowes urged again.

"Not if I know it," retorted the bosun, dodging a blow with a clubbed rifle. He parried another swing, then stooped and grabbed a fold of Fellowes' shirt, jerking it over the Long Islander's head. Blinded and hampered, Fellowes stumbled to his knees, and by the time he had ripped off the tattered garment and scrambled up, half-naked, Clinch was safely out of reach.

The sailors recovered rapidly from their panic, and made for the creek bank, halting at intervals to fire their pistols and gain a breathing spell. Daylight, Fellowes realized, would increase the timidity of his raw men, and he called anxiously to Sophie:

"We must finish this while we have the darkness for cover. One more

"Him! Little Bitty Man, but Plenty Brave," he murmured.

He resumed his seat, the longboat's oars feathered and dipped, and she pulled away for the mouth of the creek, as the first pink of the sunrise stained the east. Fellowes waded ashore, less disgruntled than he had been. For Collishaw's parting words had recognized their equality. They were no longer captain and common sailor, superior and infinitely inferior; but two enemies, who should encounter on a level plain of equality, honorable, however bliter the hatred which knit their interests as closely as though they had been abiding friends. And somehow, hatred tasted cleaner in Fellowes' mouth—much, much cleaner than the hatred he held for the three who remained in the farmhouse beyond the creek fields.

"Three of us left," groaned Fellowes. "But we can't fail like this. We must take Collishaw."

They stepped out of the smoke onto the creek bank as the longboat was backing into midstream. The gun in her bows no longer aimed their way, but several sailors discharged pistols at them. Collishaw, in the sternsheet, bending over a wounded man, straightened at a word from Clinch, who held the tiller.

Fellowes waded waist-deep into the creek.

"Collishaw," he shouted. "D'you hear me, Collishaw?"

The Badger's captain rose slowly to his feet, motioning to several of his crew to put aside their pistols.

"I hear you," he answered clearly.

"This is Fellowes—Lion Fellowes, whom you flogged. Will you come ashore, and fight me, man to man?"

"How did you come here, Fellowes?"

"Never mind how I came here," Fellowes waded further out, the bottom mud clutching at his feet. "Will you come ashore, and fight me, man to man? Choose your weapons, choose mine. You and all your men shall go off, unharmed, whatever happens to me."

"That is impossible," the Englishman replied deliberately. "I am an officer on duty. I cannot indulge in personal quarrels."

Gripped us he was by a rage that was volcanic in its force, Fellowes never for a second doubted the honesty of his enemy's position. Say what he might of Collishaw, he would believe the Englishman courageous—mortal courageous, as well as physically.

"Yes, 'tis so, and you know it." Tom went on, encouraged by the titters of the crowd. "Ever since Minnie's father died and left her that farm and five thousand in the bank, she thinks every fellow that looks cross-eyed at her is after her money."

"Very well, I'll come to you."

Collishaw bowed.

"I shall be ready, Fellowes."

He resumed his seat, the longboat's oars feathered and dipped, and she pulled away for the mouth of the creek, as the first pink of the sunrise stained the east. Fellowes waded ashore, less disgruntled than he had been. For Collishaw's parting words had recognized their equality. They were no longer captain and common sailor, superior and infinitely inferior; but two enemies, who should encounter on a level plain of equality, honorable, however bliter the hatred which knit their interests as closely as though they had been abiding friends. CHAPTER VII

A Nolle Prosequi

The glow in the east was deepening. Objects that had been obscure assumed their proper shape. Fellowes' whole being, now that Collishaw had escaped, was concentrated upon the punishment of the three who remained in Chater's house. Climbing the creek bank, he set his face in that direction and led the way across the trampled fields, pausing only when they came upon a rusty-brown sprawl of limbs in a furrow of beet tops. Pallid lips mumbled unhappily:

"D—n milishy! Take—Continents—stand—cannon—"

"We can't leave Peir out here," exclaimed Fellowes. "His wounds must be dressed."

"Notin' to do for them wounds," grunted Tom. "Looks like he'd stopped a roundshot."

"You drove the Britishers, Peir," Fellowes tried to comfort him. "We'd have been beaten without you."

"D—n milishy! Take—Continents—stand—cannon—"

"We can't leave Peir out here," exclaimed Fellowes. "His wounds must be dressed."

"Notin' to do for them wounds," grunted Tom. "Looks like he'd stopped a roundshot."

"You drove the Britishers, Peir," Fellowes tried to comfort him. "We'd have been beaten without you."

"Drove 'em—hey!" The wrinkled face lightened. "Jest—like—Sarotog!"

The breath quickened. "Give 'em—buy'n't—boys—ses L But—takes—Continents—"

He sighed faintly, and the light in his face went out.

"Poor old Peir," Fellowes said sadly.

"If we'd had dozen like him Collishaw couldn't have escaped. Pick him up, Cuffee. We'll carry him with us."

Cuffee handed Mrs. Rhodes' musket to Tom, and gathered the frail body in his arms, cradling it with a gentleness that was almost maternal.

"Him! Little Bitty man, but plenty brave," he murmured.

Fellowes strode along, absorbed once more in contemplation of his vengeance, unconscious of the ghastly figure he made, plastered with mud and water, his naked torso hideously scarred by the livid welts of the cat.

French Beggars Flock to Their Special Mass

The great church of Sacre Coeur (Sacred Heart) on the heights of Montmartre, Paris, has a feature that could not be duplicated in any other church in the world. Every Sunday morning at eight o'clock there is "Beggars' Mass."

Gaily, painlessly climbing the steps come hundreds of the down-and-outs of Paris, some unshorn and shoeless, others in rags and still others bent over with physical infirmities.

But they are proud of their special service, and the mass is said to them by the chief dignitary of the church.

The service is complete in everything but the collection. As the poor go out each receives 25 centimes—nickel in the old days—and a card good for a large piece of bread. On special church days the gift is increased, and the attendance is larger.

An office is also maintained to help them get work.

Speaking of these Sunday services a church dignitary said:

"If there remains a spark under the ashes it may be fanned to flame. Many there are who owe to their coming here the straightening of a broken life."

Speed of Meteorites

The fact that more meteorites are seen in the afternoon and evening than in the morning hours shows that their velocities must be, in general, greater than that of the earth, otherwise they would not overtake the earth in such great numbers. There is reason to believe, says Nature Magazine, that meteorites are different in their origin from shooting stars, that they are not true members of our solar system but are drawn into it from interstellar space by the attraction of the sun.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

The Wandering Jew

THESE is little mystery to the story of the "Wandering Jew," so far as the personage himself is concerned, but there is a deep and as yet unsolved mystery about the origin of this legend, dealing, according to the Jewish encyclopedia, with a shoemaker who, taunting Jesus on the road to Golgotha, was told by Him to "Go on forever till I return"—or, according to the more popular version, "Tarry thou till I come."

One seems to know just how this story started. So far as can be learned, the legend first appeared in a pamphlet of four leaves printed at Leyden in 1602 by Christoff. Crutzer, but no printer of that name has ever been located and the real place and printer cannot now be ascertained. The legend spread quickly throughout Germany, no less than six different editions of the pamphlet appearing during the year 1602 and forty were extant in Germany before the end of the Eighteenth century, while the story made its way into England in 1625, and to other European countries about the same time, eventually forming the basis of a number of novels and other imaginative works based upon the same idea.

According to Behauer, one of the recognized authorities upon subjects of this kind, the legend is founded on the words given in Matthew 10:28, which are quoted in the earliest German pamphlets of 1602. Another version of the legend declares that the attendant Malchus, whose ear was cut off by Peter in the garden of Gethsemane, was condemned to wander over the face of the earth until the second coming of Christ.

The notion of Malchus is associated by several biblical commentators with the scoffing at Jesus and an actual predecessor of the wandering Jew is recorded in the "Flores Historiarum," by Roger of Wendover, in 1228. Here it is stated that an Armenian bishop, then visiting in England, was asked by the monks of St. Albans about the celebrated Joseph of Arimathea, who had spoken to Jesus and who was popularly supposed still to be alive. The archbishop declared that he had himself seen him in Armenia and that his name was Cartaphilus.

Moncure D. Conway attempts to connect the legend with those of other "immortals"—King Arthur, Frederick Barbarossa, Don Sebastian of Portugal, Thomas the Rhymer and even Rip Van Winkle, claiming that all are founded on the same belief in the immortality of certain prominent personages, some of whom are notable for their praiseworthy exploits and others for crimes which they must expire by centuries of bodily suffering.

Numbers of persons have presented themselves as the "Wandering Jew" and have gathered varying numbers of believers in their statements during the past three centuries—the most notable of these being Count Cagliostro, the Italian imposter who stopped at nothing in order to attain his ends. In 1542 a man appeared in Hamburg, Germany, who declared that he had been present during the passion of Christ and that since that time he had wandered through many countries and over many lands, as penance for his voluntary participation in the dragging of Jesus before Pilate.

Another man, representing himself to be the same character, appeared in the Netherlands in 1575, arriving at Strassburg a few years later and, presenting himself before the magistrates, informed them that he had visited their city two centuries before, which is said to be proved to be true by reference to the registers of the town, wherein the stranger pointed out an entry about himself and also called attention to names which he mentioned before they were shown to him.

The "Wandering Jew" was next heard of in the West Indies and, in 1604, he made his appearance in France, where he caused a considerable sensation. On April 22, 1774, the Wanderer, or an individual who impersonated him, appeared in Brussels under the name of Isaac Laquedem and only a few years ago another claimant to the title made himself known in central Germany—but not one of these surrounded himself with the atmosphere and apparent sincerity of Cagliostro, a confessed imposter, who had so grounded himself in history and languages as to be able to speak with apparent authority about every event of importance which had taken place since the beginning of the Christian era.

De Rivera's Hoodoo

The late Primo de Rivera had to lose, any Spanish gypsy could have told him so right off. His name was composed of 13 letters, the kingdon he set out to save was that of Alfonso Thirteenth and he began his task on a thirteenth day of September. Therefore Primo's fall before his recent death came when he had been 76 months at the helm—7 plus 6 are 13; or, if you will, after 6 years, 4 months and 13 days. Or, again, after 2326 days—2 plus 3 plus 2 plus 6 are 13. Of the year 1930—1 plus 9 plus 3 plus 0 are 13.

Primo appointed 13 ministers. Put it as you will, Primo was doomed. His day would come according to his horoscope, said the superstitious Andalusians, Primo's countrymen, who cross their fingers hastily at the sight of a one-eyed man or a lizard and invoke Saint Maria to protect them.

Charms of Malaga

Turkeys Driven to Market Through the Streets of Malaga.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

SPAIN is once again in the world's news because of its change of dictators, but it is chiefly the Spain of Madrid and the well beaten path between the easily accessible cities, that most tourists travel. Most travelers have their first experience with the Spanish carabinero either at the customhouse of Irún, south of Biarritz, or at Port Bou, on the Mediterranean side. Then they hasten to San Sebastian, on one end of the Pyrenees, or to Barcelona, on the other, and after a brief stay, proceed to Madrid. Later, if there is time, to Toledo, and southward to Seville and Granada.

Thus merely the high spots are touched, while the unlimited beauty and interest of Spain lying along the bypaths remain scarcely known—and are still waiting to delight the venturesome traveler.

In seeking little-known Spain one of the best places to start the quest is on the Spanish Riviera, along the Mediterranean coast from Gibraltar to Almeria. The center of this district is the seaport of Malaga, a city of 150,000 inhabitants, surrounded by a semicircle of mountains which forms a natural rampart against the cold from the north and gives to this delightful spot a mildness of winter climate unequalled in all Europe.

As a general description of Malaga today, one need employ only three words: clean, modern, charming. Polite traffic officers—perhaps one should say "bubbles," because they are dressed in neat uniforms of British pattern—direct the stream of automobiles just as they do in London. There are broad avenues, lovely villas, and well-kept parks, in which an endless variety of bright flowers is always in bloom.

Indeed, this Andalusian city, nestling on the blue Mediterranean, has ambition and is exerting effort toward its accomplishment—to attract the tourists, or at least some of them, who have grown tired of returning year after year to the French Riviera.

In the Market Place.

One center of interest is the market place, a large covered building built around a picturesque Moorish arch which serves as its entrance. There are aisles of stalls devoted to meat, fish, vegetables, and fruit; but the market has overflowed its banks and now extends out into the adjoining streets, where in open air there are rows of fruit and vegetable stalls in charge of peasant men and women.

Apart from the fruit stalls is a stand selling earthen water jugs, of various sizes, arranged along the sidewalk. These are open at the neck, but have a tiny spout in the side. The peasants drink by holding the jug well above their heads and letting the tiny stream of water fall into their open mouths. A novice at this method has considerable difficulty not only with the aim, but also with swallowing against the steady stream of liquid.

The crescent of mountains which surrounds Malaga is about 60 miles from point to point and is formed of five ranges. They still bear their Moorish names: Sierra de Mijas, Sierra de Abdalagis, Sierra de Alhama, Sierra de Tejeda, and the Sierra de Almijara, which drops suddenly into the sea near Almuñecar.

The old word "sawmear" means, in Spanish, a "saw," and it is vividly descriptive of these irregular sawtooth mountain lines along the sky. Each range is in itself cut and scarred into jagged peaks and precipitous chasms, the tops being of barren and forbidding rock. Then, lower down, is a covering of palmetto grass thickly interspersed with aromatic herbs—thyme, rosemary, and lavender—and on the lower slopes, in symmetrical rows, like soldiers, thousands upon thousands of silver-green olive trees.

Here and there, on steeper slopes, the olives give place to almonds, and in January their pink and white blossoms, which appear before any of the green leaves, make a little picture of fairyland. The valleys are all yellow and green—orange trees, lemon trees, grapevines, and sugar canes.

Everything is "paintable."

From almost any viewpoint in the valley, not one, but three or four, rugged mountain lines, may be seen, one piled up back of the other. The last line, in the far distance, is in the most delicate shades of blues and purples; and yet, because of the brilliant atmosphere, it stands out clearly against the deep, cloudless sky. The tops of the nearer ranges take on deeper hues of blue and purple of startling beauty, and the foreground has its splashes of brilliant yellow, green, and orange in the sunshine.

As if still not satisfied with this lavish rainbow of bright colors, Nature has painted the cultivated soil a deep, rich Venetian red; so that even the ground work in this Andalusian land takes on a beauty and interest all its own.

Artists who see this lovely country for the first time exclaim that everything is "paintable"—every tree, every building, every mountain top.

The same is true of many of the lesser-known provinces of Spain, each has its own strong provincial individuality, not only of landscape, but also in facial types and coloring, quaint Old World costumes, and even in the different trappings with which horses, mules, donkeys, and the huge bullocks are decked out.

Malaga has a daily paper, La Union Mercantil, of which in all Justice it may be exceedingly proud. A large "double-deck" press of French make turns out its 12 to 16 pages every day. In the composing room four linotypes click busily all night long. Modernity in the extreme is the keynote of its production; yet in every issue there is a quarter column headed "On This Same Date." Thereunder appear items that have happened in the province on the date of issue, but in previous years. Generally, there are six or eight years picked at random by the well-informed chronologist, but often these go back before the discovery of America and refer to family names still existing in the city!

One reads in quite a matter-of-fact way:

December 9, 1468.—King Henry IV conferred the title of "Very Noble" upon the city of Antequera, Province of Malaga, showing proof of his affection and consideration for the heroic services rendered by its inhabitants.

December, 1618.—After more than a whole year of drought, it rained to-day in Antequera, but it was only a little shower, so the hunger and difficulties still continue.

And these little pictures themselves, sometimes gay, but more often grave, bring the distant centuries, with their odd customs and strange superstitions very near to us. The narrow streets in Malaga's center which one passes every day are mentioned time and again.

Where Phoenicians Lived.

In the very center of the city is the Gibralfaro, a miniature mountain, which rises straight out of Malaga's principal streets to a height of 500 feet. Halfway up the approach is the Alcazaba, which was the site of the original Phoenician settlement. It passed through the hands of Romans, Visigoths, and Moors, the latter capturing it in the year 711. They made this vantage spot half palace and half citadel, and it was not until August 18, 1487, that the Spanish standard was flown over its battlements. The Alcazaba was one of the very last of the Moorish strongholds on European soil.

Today there are a few tortuous streets, steep and narrow, leading between old houses, many in ruins, and a group of gypsy huts. At one or two places the streets pass through archways with the houses built over them.

Formerly this part of Malaga, which is the most picturesque and interesting, was so dirty and the gypsies so menacing in their demands for "One penny, please," that tourists were advised to leave it out of their itinerary. Now it has been cleaned up to some extent and the inhabitants are less impudent.

In Malaga, as elsewhere in Spain, one sees many apprentice boys of twelve to fourteen years. Every plumber, carpenter, and electrician has a small boy to carry his tools and help with the job.

In many cases taxi drivers have a boy to do the cranking and other onerous tasks. The hairdresser's boy accompanies him to the house, carrying a little bag, and sits on the steps while Madame is being marcelled. In fact, even for the ordinary civilian, to carry a small parcel of any sort is not quite the proper thing. A boy should tag along behind, bearing the burden, however small.

Moslem Faith Kept by Tatars in Lithuania

More than 500 years ago when Vytautas the Great was ruling over the grand principality of Lithuania, then at the height of its power and prosperity, he brought back as prisoners from one of his campaigns in the southeast several hundred Tatars. They remained in Lithuania intermarried with the native women, but did not give up their Moslem faith and customs.

United with the remnants of the Tatar troops left by the grand khan to the Lithuanian grand duke, most of whom fell in the wars with the Teutonic knights, these faithful followers of Mahomet planted the banner of the crescent in these northern regions and their descendants have kept it flying right down to today.

In connection with the solemn celebration this year in all Lithuania of the 500th anniversary of the death of Vytautas the Great, the League of Lithuanian Tatars recently held a meeting in Kovno (Kaunas) and decided to build a central mosque in the capital city.

No "nobody" thinks he is one.

Easter's Meaning

Easter was meaning very little else to little Junior except Easter rabbits and colored Easter eggs.

"Now, why do we celebrate Easter?" the Sunday school teacher asked the class of tots.

"I don't know but it might be all the little baby chicks' birthday," was an unexpected reply from Junior.
